- New Conscience Protections for Healthcare Workers

Corresponding with the March for Life, it was announced that there would be additional protections for workers who did not want to engage in abortion. This is extremely important for our medical education and outreach program, which tries to inspire the next generation of medical providers to practice pro-life medicine despite legitimate concern over possible legal repercussions. It also ensures ongoing protection for Tepeyac and similar centers that are completely pro-life. It's sad to see anyone fight against the importance of conscience in a free nation.

Here's two articles on this for your benefit:

Trump Rescues Pro-Life Docs and Nurses - Real Clear Politics

"President Trump's initiative is intended to stop what Cardinal Timothy Dolan calls the 'increasing and fierce attack on conscience rights' in medicine."

Medical Establishment Opposes Conscience Rights - National Review

"Basic comity requires such focused enforcement of legal conscience protections. Otherwise, pro-lifers will be driven entirely out of medicine—an outcome I assume the leaders of the Massachusetts Medical Society would heartily applaud."

- Cecile Richard's Resignation from Planned Parenthood

The announcement of Cecile Richards' resignation as president of Planned Parenthood inspired excitement and hopefulness in pro-life leaders. Internationally known Dr. John Bruchalski, founder of Tepeyac OB/GYN and Divine Mercy Care; Will Waldron, Divine Mercy Care's executive director; and Chaney Mullins, operations manager of Pro Women's Healthcare Centers (PWHC) had this to say regarding Planned Parenthood's future:

"An organization that's genuinely concerned with healthcare must operate from a basis of sound medical science," said Dr. Bruchalski. "A change of course at this point in Planned Parenthood's history would permit that organization to do exactly that. Safe, free, effective, all-natural fertility-based family planning methods will serve the whole woman and permit full development of empowered women—something that Planned Parenthood has long professed to support."

"Under new leadership," Waldron commented, "Planned Parenthood will have a new chance to live up to its name by developing programs and services that actually assist people who plan to become parents. I've lost track of how long the disconnect between the Planned Parenthood name and its concentration on abortion and artificial birth control (both methods of ensuring no parenthood) has been growing. No one who's interested in truthfulness can feel comfortable with such a contradiction."

Mullins remarked that "Planned Parenthood has had quite the leader at its helm. In Richards' time, Planned Parenthood has grown into one of the most well-known and controversial organizations. She oversaw a shift in Planned Parenthood's marketing language from 'choice' to 'healthcare,' leading many to think Planned Parenthood is a vital women's healthcare provider in the social safety net. Instead, women want wider options presented to them—organic family planning options, birth options, parenting and adoption options—real choices and assistance from high-quality healthcare providers. This is the promise of PWHC, and we are glad to be an emerging voice for women's health."

In an off-the-record collective statement, all three of these pro-life warriors expressed agreement: Planned Parenthood is presented with an unparalleled opportunity to transform its services into what truly promotes the best interests of women.

- The Launch of our DMC Program Pro Women's Healthcare Centers (PWHC)

PWHC

We are proud to announce the official launch of Pro Women's Healthcare Centers (PWHC). This is the new manifestation of our Divine Mercy Care national unity program, which is part of our mission to unify the pro-life movement. PWHC is a certification seal - like a Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval - for other centers similar to Tepeyac OB/GYN across the country. The mission of the consortium of Pro Women's Healthcare Centers is to partner with women to provide comprehensive, convenient, compassionate, high-quality medical services and access to social services that empower them to care for their health.

- The Honor Given to Dr. Bruchalski by Solidarity Healthshare

Solidarity Healthshare honored Dr. Bruchalski and Tepeyac OB/GYN along with the work of Morning Star OB/GYN at their reception the night before the March for Life. This was a significant honor and came with a monetary donation towards Pro Women's Healthcare Centers, which unites Tepeyac, Morning Star, and other practices around shared standards.
